

The Leech of Folkestone, set in the depths of Romney Marsh, tells the macabre but humorous tale of a woman so fed up with her husband, she sets out to rid herself of him with the help of the local doctor. The play contains mediaeval folklore, comic and colourful characters, supernatural themes and beautiful, dramatic descriptions of the landscape of southeast Kent.

For booking enquiries email: fpactouring@gmail.com
Website: www.fpac.info

The Folkestone Performing
Arts Company presents:

THE LEECH OF FOLKESTONE

Adapted and written by: Liz Page Train

- Adapted from the Victorian The Ingoldsby Legends by Kent-born Richard H. Barham
- Indoor, suitable for non-theatrical spaces
- 5 performers and 1 stage manager /technician
- Self-contained with live music
- 80 min (excluding interval)
- Need access to plug sockets
- Ages 10 +

Created with support from:

Supported using public funding by
ARTS COUNCIL ENGLAND

Creative
Folkestone